

Initial reduction, using significance testing-based methods. Stepwise selection was used within groups and forward selection was used between groups.

Reduction based on AIC then adding significant interactions in the selected model

After removing the outlier

